Should I Stay or Should I Go? Part II

You made it to NITOC 2016. Now, you realize that another consideration comes during NITOC week, after breaks are announced. Again, "Should I stay (at NITOC), or, should I go (back home)?"

Well, here are a few great reasons to stay:

- Continue competing with Breakout Impromptu. Those who compete at NITOC 2016 and do not break in any events will be able to compete in the Breakout Impromptu event if you registered in advance during the registration process. This is a great way to continue practicing your skills at the national level and have opportunity to compete for the national championship.

- Continue learning and growing. Those who don't break have wonderful opportunities to cheer on others who are competing, to observe debate rounds, or watch speeches being presented by students from across the country. This is an amazing time to learn from others and to keep growing in your skills. It's all up close and live, so it's even better than YouTube videos.

- Continue to Fellowship. One of the best things about NITOC is the reunion of old friends and the making of new ones. You'll find comradary all over the campus playing card games, instruments, laughing, walking to rounds together, and taking goofy selfies. Sound fun? It IS. You don't want to miss it!!

- Continue to Serve and Encourage. For parents, we'll still have judging needs throughout the week. By taking ballots towards the middle and end of the week, you'll be blessing those who are continuing their training, running, and competition. For students, by watching, clapping, giving a thumbs up, and saying "Great job!" to someone, you could be exactly the person that encourages someone who needs it at that very moment.

- Continue to Celebrate!! NITOC is a celebration. On Thursday, we will enjoy a social together. At the end of the week, we will all come together to close out the week with awards and our Closing Ceremony. We would love for all our students, families, and alumni to come together to close out the week with the Stoa Board and one another. It will be an awesome time as we celebrate YOU!!

Stay and compete. Stay and grow. Stay and fellowship. Stay and encourage. Stay and serve. Stay and celebrate the entire week at

Recording Rounds
